DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

1. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Claims 1-3,5 and 6 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-16 of U.S. Patent No. 5,719,533. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims now being recited, claims 1-6 for a function generator with regards to the current exchanger circuits, a current in proportion to the n th power..., first circuit with series connection of PN junctions, second circuit with PN junction, output transistor and a crystal oscillator with crystal and the temperature compensation.

The structure claimed in the patent allows for the outputting of current in proportion to the $n+1$ th or 2 n th power of the difference...this is highlighted by col. 4, lines 52-67, in support of such structure meeting the current claim limitations.

The two exchanger circuits are met by patent claim 1, as a first diode series and first current source, and second diode series and second current source. An output transistor is claimed, as well as structure to support temperature coefficient being constant regardless of ambient temp.(see col. 11, 35-67); the structure claimed in the patent are the current sources as claimed in claim 14, for the third current source unaffected by ambient temp, for example.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3, 5 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shibuya et al(US 5,719,533).

The structure the patent allows for the outputting of current in proportion to the $n+1$ th or 2nth power of the difference...this is highlighted by col. 4, lines 52-67, in support of such structure meeting the current claim limitations; please see figures 1 and 10, figure 10 shows crystal oscillator embodiment). The two exchanger circuits are met by figure 1, as a first diode series and first current source, and second diode series and second current source. An output transistor(18) is shown, as well as structure to support temperature coefficient being constant regardless of ambient temp.(see col 11, 35-67); the structure in the patent figure 11allows for the third current source unaffected by ambient temp, for example.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claim4 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
